AFSCME Statement on DPSCS Missing Pay Rally

Baltimore - On November 17th, over 60 AFSCME members and public safety employees rallied outside Secretary Stephen T. Moyer's office in Towson to address the issues with the recent Workday payroll system.

Since the roll-out of the Workday payroll system, many employees have been missing overtime hours on their checks as well as regular hours they have worked. This is unacceptable.

Reporting to ABC 2 News, Gary McLhinny, Director of Professional Standard, stated "Going forward we're going to work the glitches out," and that of the 10,000 DPSCS employees, only 86 came forward with pay issues.

This information is incorrect.

In fact, hundreds of DPSCS employees have reported issues with their paychecks and overtime hours, but only 86 employees have received checks due to their hours being short.

AFSCME will continue to fight until all employees have received the money they've worked for and the issues with Workday are resolved.
